THE FALL OF BATOCHE.

Brilliant Dash of the Volunteers.

The Grenadiers and the 90th the Heroes.

WINNIPEG, May 14.—The wires from the West have been again restored, and more particulars arrive of the fight at Batoche. The brilliant dash of the volunteers is fully confirmed, ending in the utter rout and dispersing of the rebels. A correspondent, describing the battle says: As the troops advanced to the top of the slope leading down to the ravine, they were met by a rattling fire from the enemy, who also raised their terrible war cries, the "coyotting" so distasteful to the ears of our men. French's scouts, who were leading, made a dash down the slope towards the enemy's position. The captain himself, who was at the head of his men, cheering them on in a steady voice, was seen to start, and the next moment he cried out, "I'm shot, boys, advance without me." The captain staggered and would have fallen to the ground but for the timely arrival of one of his troopers, who rushed to his aid and supported his captain to the rear. The men paused for a moment, then rushed down the embankment, with cries of rage, determined to wreak a severe revenge on the rebels for the loss of their leader. Meanwhile the Grenadiers, Midland Battalion and 90th were rapidly charging down the slope, the officers cheering on their men as they advanced. The rebels here poured a heavy fire into the advancing force, causing many of our men to fall. It was about this time that Captain Brown, of Boulton's scouts, who was in the advance of his men, was shot through the heart, falling to the ground and immediately expiring. Several men of the Grenadiers, 90th and Midland Battalion were also hit by rebel bullets in this volley.

AMONG THE RIFLE PITS.

Undeterred, however, by the fierce fire, the troops continued to steadily advance, and soon reached the rifle pits, which were each manned by rebel sharpshooters. With bayonets fixed our men advanced on the pits. Here Acting-Captain Fitch, of the Grenadiers, who was leading on his men, was shot through the heart and died instantly. The captain was much liked by his men, and the sight of the fall enraged them. They advanced on the rebels, and being ably supported by the other regiments, after a short, sharp struggle, the rebels, were driven from the pits to more secure cover in the village. The fierceness of the attack was evidently a surprise to the rebels, as Riel had been telling his men that the volunteers were a lot of boys who would not stand fire after half a dozen were shot, and the rebels were led to momentarily expect peace proposals from General Middleton.

A NEVER-TO-BE-FORGOTTEN CHARGE.

The charge down the slope entering the village was one never to be forgotten. As the General saw the desperate, defiant onslaught of the Grenadiers he called to Lieut. Freer, his aide: "There is death or victory in that charge; let them go." The men had been harassed and goaded by ambush firing until they were fairly wild with rage, and would have been a match for the best trained regulars, for their blood was up. Private Barton was shot twice. After his first wound he tripped and fell forward, but, recovering himself, he dashed after his company. It was not until he received a second hit that he gave way. Several other deeds of bravery were noticed, men who were wounded fighting with desperation till forced to give up, owing to loss of blood.

IN THE VILLAGE.

As soon as the rifle pits were captured our men dashed after the fleeing rebels, and tried to dislodge them from their cover. This was a work of no little difficulty, and was attended with considerable hard fighting, but by extraordinary exertions on the part of the men, the rebels were at last dislodged from all the houses in the place, which were captured and all the prisoners held by Riel released, as I announced in my previous dispatch. Batoche was now ours, and the men cheered lustily over the result of the fight. In several of the houses men, women and children were found hiding in the cellars in a state of piteous trepidation.

THE SUEZ CANAL COMMISSION.

Bismarck and Gladstone Disagree.

What the Tory Leaders Want to Do.

NEW YORK, May 19.—A special from Paris says: Political interest here centers entirely on the proceedings of the Suez canal commission. English delegates refuse to admit the proposed international surveillance of the canal. A member of a sub-commission says the history of the meetings held, if written, would be that of a long, dogged struggle between Bismarck and Gladstone. Germany has shown herself far more hostile to England throughout than even France. Italy has been neutral in the surveillance question, though she leaned toward England. As a basis of their opposition to England, the German delegates resuscitated the first counter proposal, made in a moment of irritation by France, after the issue of Granville's circular in 1883. France subsequently made a second counter proposal, which all the powers clearly understood to have completely annulled the previous one. The English delegates are convinced that even if an agreement is reached upon the point now at issue, Bismarck will raise fresh difficulties. Quite two months are expected to elapse before the regularly constituted conference disposes of the whole question.

NEW YORK, May 19.—A cable from London says: "Lord Churchill is anxious that the conservatives should make common cause with the Parnellites and radicals, in resisting the crimes act, if he could persuade tory leaders that such a course would destroy the bill and the government, but Lord Salisbury will not acquiesce. The conservatives represent property and protestantism, and the real object of the act is to prevent such classes being robbed and murdered. There is hope that the Irish party, in the rush of violence, will be suspended for disregarding the authority of the chair. Irish members, however, are aware of the danger. Their leader is cool, and resistance will take the form of skilful, persistent, but not boisterous obstruction. A prominent Catholic told a correspondent to-day that the effect of the action of the government will be to close all breaches, and cause all nationalists to form an unbroken front against the Saxon policy of inaction for six months more. The introduction of a land purchase scheme might have done more to aid in the extinction of nationalist agitation than all the crimes acts that could be framed now. All dissensions will cease before the new crusades at the coming election, and the nationalist ranks will be considerably increased.

STAYNER, May 13.—At a quarter past two this morning a fire occurred in the hotel occupied by P. McSherry in this village. The firemen were quickly on the spot, and did good work in preventing the spread of the fire. Mrs. McSherry, her niece, and other inmates of the house had a very narrow escape from death. The fire had obtained such headway before it was discovered that escape was almost cut off. The hotel was totally destroyed. Two small houses adjoining were also destroyed. Mr. Deaville's furniture store was badly damaged by fire and water, but he saved his stock of goods; his barn and stables also escaped destruction. The fire is supposed to have occurred from the explosion of an oil-lamp in the room of a guest who left it burning.

The man Nagle, who assaulted Mr. Whitcher, formerly commissioner of marine and fisheries, was to-day sentenced at the police court to one year at hard labor in the central prison.

TORONTO, May 13.—Gooderham & Worth's distillery paid into the inland revenue office to-day for duty on spirits nearly $173,000 in one check, being the largest amount ever paid at one time.

Several young boys were playing with a toy cannon to-day on Beverley street, when one dropped a lighted match into a can containing powder. Two of the boys, Arthur Reveare, aged nine, and Willie Smith, aged nine, lie in a critical condition. The former, especially, is not expected to recover. Another boy, Joseph Hedges, aged seven, is painfully burnt.

DEATH OF VICTOR HUGO.

Vicompte Victor Marie Hugo, died in Paris yesterday at 1.30 p. m., in the 84th year of his age. The thrilling novelist and poet was born in Besangon, February 26th, 1802, his father being a colonel in the French army. From Besangon he was carried to Elba, to Paris, to Rome, and to Naples, before he was five years of age. In 1809 he returned to France and received classical instruction at a religious house. The first volume of his "Odes and Ballads" appeared in 1822, and his tales, "Hans of Iceland," and "Bug Jargal," were written about this time. In 1826 he published a second volume of "Odes and Ballads," which exhibited a change in his political and literary opinions, and in 1827 he composed his drama, "Cromwell." In 1829 he published his "Last Days of a Condemned Criminal," the terrific interest of which secured it an immense success. M. Hugo prepared a further attack on the staff and unnatural style of French dramatic literature in his "Hernani," played at the Théâtre Française, Feb. 27, 1830, and it caused a scene of riotous confusion. The Academy went so far as to lay a complaint against his attempted innovations at the foot of the throne. Charles X. sensibly replied that "in matters of art he was no more than a private person." Shortly after the revolution of July, 1830, his "Marion de Lorme," which had been suppressed by the censorship under the Restoration, was brought out with success. "Le Roi s'amuse" was performed at the Théâtre Français in Jan. 1832, and the day after its production was interdicted by the government. M. Victor Hugo, who published a number of dramatic pieces of various merit, after many struggles was admitted into the Academy in 1841, and was created a peer of France by Louis-Phillippe. In 1849 he was chosen president of the Peace Congress, of which he had been a leading member. After 1852 M. Victor Hugo resided in exile in Jersey, Guernsey, and elsewhere, and refused to avail himself of the general amnesty issued Aug. 15, 1859. On the fall of the empire, however, he hastened back to his native country, entered heartily into the Republican movement, and was returned to the National Assembly at Bordeaux, which he soon quitted in disgust, sending, on March 9, 1871, the following characteristic letter to the President, M. Grévy: "Three weeks ago the Assembly refused to hear Garibaldi; to-day it refuses to hear me. I resign my seat." M. Hugo then repaired to Brussels, but the Belgian government, alarmed by his violent writings, and his avowed sympathy with the Communists, expelled him from the country. He then sought refuge in the seclusion of the little town of Luxemburg, where he composed "L'Année Terrible." Returning to Paris in July, 1871, he pleaded earnestly for the lives of Rossel, Ferré, and the other Communists, to no effect. His fame rests principally on his "Notre-Dame de Paris," which has been translated into most European languages, and is known in England under the title of the "Hunchback of Notre-Dame." His semi-historical and social romance, "Les Misérables," translated into nine languages, was issued at Paris, Brussels, London, New York, Madrid, Berlin, St. Petersburg, and Turin, the same day, April 3, 1862. Mr. Victor Hugo was a prolific writer, and his works have been translated into many tongues, and the thrilling tales read by all with fascination. Cardinal Ginbert, archbishop of Paris, went personally to see the dying author, and proffered his services, but they were declined with thanks through his son-in-law.

DEFENCELESS AMERICA.

Lieut. Griffin, a young United States military officer, has created genuine surprise and sensation by a lecture delivered by him before the military service institute of New York, on the 14th inst. Lieut. Griffin demonstrated that the cities of Portland, Boston, New York, Newport, Philadelphia, Baltimore and New Orleans, on the Atlantic isde, and of San Francisco, on the Pacific, are, at this moment, to a partial extent at the mercy of ironclads with 100-ton guns. The nations which have the best chance to inflict punishment are England and Spain. These nations have naval stations in the Atlantic—the former at Halifax and Bermuda, and the latter at Havana. The English have a naval station at Vancouver Island. All these places, according to Lieut. Griffin, are from thirty-one to eighty-five hours steam from the cities named. The other great nations of the world do not enjoy so much of an advantage. Very few of the powerful ironclads have what is called coal-endurance to cross the Atlantic. France, Russia, Austria and Italy being unprovided with naval stations in vicinity, would not be so dangerous enemies. As a sort of climax, it was said by Lieut. Griffin that even Chile could inflict sudden and severe punishment, seeing that she has quite a respectable iron clad navy. But that little republic may as well be omitted from the list of possible chastizers of the United States. The coal-endurance element would rule her out on both coasts of North America. A Chilean ironclad could not carry coal enough to reach San Francisco. Being there, it is not easy to see how the floating fortress could get away. But still the possibilities in regard to the other nations are grave enough to at once arrest the attention of the American people. Lieut. Griffin brings his speculation down to the general comprehension when he says that in the seven cities on the Atlantic coast, and in San Francisco on the Pacific, there are six billions of property at the mercy of ironclads with 100 ton guns, provided these ironclads could carry coal enough to reach them. There is no question about ironclads issuing from the naval stations of Halifax, Bermuda and Havana in the Atlantic, and from Vancouver Island in the Pacific. No nation could be insane enough to attempt an armed invasion of American territory. But any one of them which has ironclads and 100-ton guns (those which have naval stations contiguous, certainly) can batter down six billions of American property whenever they may feel so inclined. To escape such punishment it is quite evident that the American would pay heavily. A million of men drawn up on land would not be the least protection. They would be powerless to act upon the ironclads firing at long sea range. The San Francisco Bulletin is thoroughly alarmed at the picture of prospective desolation sketched by Lieut. Griffin, and says: "The urgency of the case seems to require that we ought to secure guns right off, wherever they can be found. But the main thing is to establish gun foundries in the United States. There are three of them wanted—one for the North Atlantic, a second for the South Atlantic, and a third for the Pacific coast, located on the inland waters of California."

THURSDAY NIGHT'S MEETING

The meeting of Thursday night was the largest and most unanimous ever held in the province. The noisy and depraved element which sometimes gathers on the skirts of a great popular gathering was not there. In its place were well dressed, "sincere," earnest and thoughtful looking men who were apparently deeply impressed with the pressing importance of the crisis and the necessity for the adoption of remedial measures. The remarks of Councillor Robertson, who presided, were brief and pointed. The meeting listened with marked attention to the reading of the eloquent and pathetic appeal to the workingmen of the Dominion by Mr. Duval. All the speeches were short, but they were very effective and earnest. The resolutions passed were temperate but forcible, and the moderation of the leaders was demonstrated when some voices that cried "To Chinatown!" were hushed by a few timely words. The appeal will be forwarded to every labor centre in the east and wherever it is read will excite the active sympathy of all classes. At Ottawa it will exert a powerful influence and may be the means of hastening the passage of a restrictive measure.

A FIENDISH FATHER

Flogs His Nine-Year-Old Girl to Death.

PHILADELPHIA, May 14.—At the inquest on the body of Lottie Cook Onofri yesterday, the revolting story of her cruel death was told under oath. Her step-father, the Italian, C. Achille Onofri, who is accused of killing her, was present as a prisoner and seemed to be overwhelmed by the predicament in which his brutal nature has brought him. Abundant testimony was adduced to prove all that has already been said of the horrible story. The body of the child, who was only nine years old, was covered with cuts and bruises. The coroner's physician testified that and that the child had literally been starved and beaten to death. On Monday, it was shown, Onofri flogged little Lottie nearly all day, using a thick rope, a heavy strap and a shovel, the handle of the latter being broken on head or body. Her stepfather also tied her hand and foot, and compelled her to kneel down for hours. At midnight she crawled upstairs to bed, and because she

MOANED AND COMPLAINED OF HER BACK,

Onofri beat her again with the shovel. It was shown that after lying quiet for awhile, the dying child again began to moan, when he, in a great rage, fell upon her, smothered her head under a pillow and sat upon it When released, the young victim, as her little sister Mabel said, "lay very quiet." Onofri then struck her twice in the face with his fist, and although she did not move, then, becoming alarmed at the increasing pallor on her little face, the stepfather sent for a doctor. When the physician arrived the child was in Onofri's arms dead. The case was continued in order that the testimony of the other children may be taken.

STRUCK HER AGAIN WITH THE SHOVEL,

Gourko's Plans.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 13.—The Russians now have 120,000 men between the Caspian Sea and Herat. According to the best military estimate the Russian position is practically unassailable. It would be madness for an Anglo-Indian army of less than 250,000 men to attempt to operate in Central Asia against Russia. The following plan of operations in Central Asia has been drawn up by General Gourko and will be put into execution in the event of war.

First—The principles of the campaign would be those of the Moscow campaign of 1812 against Napoleon.

Second—The Russian commander would strictly avoid any general engagement until the Anglo-Indian army was drawn into the interior at least six hundred miles beyond Candahar.

Third—Three Russian corps d'armee, each 30,000 strong, would await the Anglo Indian advance in strongly defensive positions, echeloned along the Kushk and the Murghab rivers.

Fourth—25,000 Cossacks at the first sign of the British advance would swarm through Afghanistan, arouse the whole country, proclaim Ayoub Khan ameer, and harrass the British communications, burning the supplies, raiding round the British army, stampeding camp followers, etc., but avoiding a serious engagement.

Fifth—A corps of observation of 25,000 men and 15,000 Cossacks to be stationed at Chickishlar, on the Caspian, ready to march to Teheran the instant the Shah of Persia should show the slightest sign of aiding the English.

Sixth—When the Anglo Indian army has been drawn far into the interior, worn out by difficult country, and worried night and day by Cossacks, it would be attacked simultaneously by 90,000 men forming three Russian Corps d'Armee.

Seventh—In case of a British defeat, the Russian advance would be followed by the immediate construction of railways, made very slowly but surely.

CANADA.

Pensions Asked—A Skirmish.

OTTAWA, May 21.—Senator Alexander has given notice that on Friday he will call attention to the destitute condition of the wives and families of the volunteers who have been killed or wounded while engaged in suppressing the insurrection in the Northwest, and will ask the government whether it is their intention to grant immediate aid to those cases where such families are destitute.

WINNIPEG, May 21.—A report comes from Calgary that Major Steel, with the advance guard of General Middleton's column, had a skirmish with the Indians near Fort Pitt, and lost some men, and had to retire towaad Edmonton. There is nothing definite about this, and not much faith is put in the report.

QUEBEC, May 21.—The provincial government has notified the town council of Levis that if its indebtedness of between $65,000 and $70,000 is not paid at once, they will take out a writ of seizure and place the town under charge of the sheriff.

The United States Indian War in Arizona.

EASTERN STATES.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 22.—At Erie, Pa., to-day the jury awarded L. E. Rosenzwig $18,750 damages for being ejected from a Lake Shore passenger train. The train was a limited express, and the conductor refused to accept regular ticket or money for Rosenzwig's passage from Cleveland to Erie. Rosenzwig fell on a pile of stone when he was put off the train, and paralysis was the result. He sued for $100,000.

CHICAGO, May 22.—At the Park theater to night young Tommy Warren, light weight champion of Wyoming Territory, fought four rounds with Chris Somers. Warren weighed only 120 pounds, while Somers was 15 pounds heavier. In the first round Warren proved himself a clever boxer and very hard hitter for his weight. He punished Somers considerably, blacking one of his eyes and cutting his lip. In both the second and third rounds he had much the best of the fight. In the fourth round Somers' was covered with blood and he rushed furiously at Warren. To show good generalship, Warren promptly dropped on his knees to avoid punishment, although he had Somers whipped at the time Somers struck Warren twice while he was on his knees, and Referee Chandler promptly gave the fight to Warren, amid much applause.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—Six thousand persons are in the pavilion to-night to witness the glove contest between Chas. Mitchell, English champion, and Mike Cleary, middle weight champion of America. Interest in the event is intensified by the difference in the nationality of the contestants. The winner receives 75 per cent. of the gate money, the loser the remainder. Betting is even. Four rounds were fought when the police interfered and the referees decided it a draw.

ARIZONA.

DENVER, Col., May 22.—The Tribune-Republican's Silver City, N. M., special says: The Geronimo Apaches, now in the Black range, New Mexico, near old Fort Tularosa, are heading towards Old Mexico. Troops are in hot pursuit, the cavalry concentrating their front to prevent escape.

TUCSON, May 22.—A passenger from Georgetown reports that Apaches killed a man in Bullard's mining camp 80 miles north of Silver City. Advices from Lordsbury, Arizona, state that Capt. Lee, who is in pursuit of the Indians, was obliged to wait two days on Camada ranch owing to a scarcity of rations. Capt. Pierce's company of scouts left Gila this morning for Mulesprings. His train consists of 132 mules, carrying provisions for the men, but the cavalry are short of supplies. The news reached here to-day that Indians were seen between Carlisle and Silver City going south.

TORONTO, May 15.—About 3 o'clock this morning an old man was seen by George Eagle to fall into the Don river, a little above King street. Mr. Eagle hastened to the man's assistance, but before he arrived he had sunk to rise no more. The body was recovered a few minutes later and identified as that of a wealthy farmer of Newmarket, named John Graham. It is thought that while under the influence of liquor Graham fell into the Don, having wandered from the central section of the city.

AWFUL DAYLIGHT FIRE AT CINCINNATI.

A Large Number of Persons Cremated

In a Burning Printing Office.

CINCINNATI, May 22.—At 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, J. A. Greer, city editor of the Times Star, upon going up the stairway to his office, saw dense clouds of smoke issuing from the rear windows of building Nos. 19 and 21, West Sixth street. An alarm brought the engines almost instantly, and it was not fifteen minutes until the fire was so much under control that Chief Engineer Wisby was able to reach the top floor, when to his horror he found ten bodies, with hands to their faces and faces blackened and distorted in death. The chief said, in speaking of it: "The house is not burned out. In fact, the fire was chiefly confined to the fifth story. I counted ten girls lying upon benches, tables and other things, and on the floor."

It has now been fairly ascertained the fire started from a can of benzine on the second floor near the elevator shaft. Instantly the fire leaped to the shaft, and darted up it. The shaft reaches to the top of the building, and from the third story to the fifth it was circled by a wooden stairway, which was the only means of access to these floors. The elevator shaft, to add to its combustibility, was encased with thin wooden lattice work. The second floor, where the fire started, was a press room, the third a composing room, the fourth a storage room. As the fire started Jno. Sullivan, a young man, cousin of the proprietor, ran up the stairway to the fifth floor, to give warning to the girls. J. R. Kinsley's son and his foreman had gone to their roof, adjoining this one on the west, and knowing the girls were imprisoned on the floor below, they procured a rope and lowered it to the window where Sullivan was. He instantly grasped it and fastening one of the girls to it he helped her out of the window, and Kingsley and Shroder lowered her safely to the sidewalk. The rope was again brought up and Sullivan quickly fastened it to another girl and sent her down safely. The rope came up a third time, and as the other girls by this time were all suffocated or afraid to venture, Sullivan fastened the rope to his body, and was being lowered. When he was halfway down the flames shot out of the window, and he fell head foremost to the sidewalk, in the presence of a horrified crowd of people, who had witnessed his heroism. Within ten minutes after the fire began a patrol of wagons was called into use to carry away the wounded and dead. As well as can be ascertained there were about 50 occupants of the building, of whom 20 or 25 were girls on the fifth story. The boys were on the second and third floors, and this accounts for their escape. W. R. Kingsley, who ran to his upper floor in the rear, where the flames were in danger of coming through his window, found the smoke so dense he had to crawl on the floor to reach his window and close it. All this while there was an avenue of escape which the panic-stricken girls did not think of. There was an opening in the roof which they could have easily reached from a bench standing beside the wall, and once on the roof they could have reached other buildings with perfect ease. Lack of ready access to this place lost all their lives.

The fire was so insignificant that the wooden stairway around the elevator shaft is not burned so as to be useless or unsafe, yet the flames seem to have pervaded all the floors, and to have ruined all the paper and other light combustible matter.

The scenes at Habig's undertaking establishment, where the bodies were taken and where friends and relatives came to identify them, were of the most painful character. In one case a policeman of Covington, Ky., identified his two sisters, Lizzie and Dollie Handel, who were twins. Mrs. Meir found the body of her daughter and had to be led away from the terrible sight. Mrs. Leban had the awful experience of finding her three daughters among the dead.

The Bartholdi Statue—Nothing Settled Between Russia and England.

ROUEN, May 21.—The steamship Isere, with the Bartholdi statue of Liberty Enlightening the World on board started to-day for New York. The departure of the vessel with its valuable cargo was the occasion for quite a demonstration, all the civil and military authorities of the city assembling at the pier to witness the event.

LONDON, May 21.—Concerning Turkey, Mr. Gladstone said in the house of commons that England had communications with the Porte in regard to Suakim, but none with any other power. "Nothing is settled," said Mr. Gladstone, "in regard to the arbitration between England and Russia, for it has not been absolutely settled who shall be arbitrator."

TO THE PUBLIC.

AS A RULE WE, AS A COMMUNITY, PERmit the many absurd statements that emanate from Anti-Chinese meetings to pass unnoticed. We have become so used to misrepresentation and abuse as a race that we scarcely ever notice them. Sometimes the statements made concerning us are so glaringly untrue and so easily upset that we can no longer refrain from contradicting them.

The statement in the "Appeal," passed at Thursday's meeting, that we are slaves, is either a mistake or a wilful falsehood. There are no slaves in China. There are no Chinese slaves in British Columbia. There are apprentices in both countries. So there are in the United States, Canada and England—white apprentices.

A man or firm advances a laborer in China money to reach California or Victoria, and until that money is repaid the man or firm has a claim on the laborer's wages. We have known Mr. Onderdonk to do the same thing—advance the passage money of white men in California, so that they might reach Yale, and then deduct so much per month until the amount had been repaid. That is the system of "slavery" in force among the Chinese in British Columbia. The remark that we support no churches or charities can be overcome by reference to subscription lists, where it will be found that we are generous contributors to such objects and many others. It is untrue that, as a custom, we turn our sick and dying into the streets. There have been isolated cases; but as a rule, we are kind and good to our sick and poor, and support in Victoria a benevolent society, the funds of which are being constantly drawn upon by the sick and needy of our race. To charge all Chinamen with abandoning their sick would be as bad as if the Chinese were to say that all white men are murderers because one white man had killed another.

Captain Marden's assault was laid to the Chinese. But who knows whether it was a white man or a Chinaman that tried to kill him?

We want the public to do us simple justice. There are bad men of every race. There are good and bad Chinamen and there are good and bad white men. All we ask is to be judged by the same standard as white men are judged and we will be content.

Supreme Court.

(Before Hon. Mr. Justice Gray.)

FRIDAY, May 22, 1885.

LAKIN vs. IRVING.—The judge charged strongly against the plaintiff.

The jury retired at 4 30, and at 6.15 brought up a verdict that the plaintiff had failed to establish his case by sufficient evidence.

Some discussion arising as to the effect of this verdict, Mr. Davie offered to accept a non-suit, if his lordship would direct that the same should not have the effect of a judgment upon the merits.

Mr. Helmcken objected.

The judge—I consider this to be a verdict for the defendant.

Mr. Davie—Will you ask the jury the question, Whether the introduction of the witness Bott to the plaintiff's daughter took place on the 14th April or 21st May, or when?

The foreman—Yes—on account of the lack of evidence for the plaintiff.

The judge—Let the verdict be entered accordingly. Either party may move as he may be advised.

The Driving Park Races.

Between 400 and 500 people assembled at the Victoria driving park yesterday afternoon to witness the race for the 2:40 class of horses. There were only three entries for this race. McNaught's (Seattle) "Derigo," Rudge's "Simcoe," and Clancy's "Long John."

The race was three-quarters of a mile, best two in three, 2:40 time, for a purse of $100. The horses all got off well, "Derigo" forging ahead, and keeping the lead to the finish, the other two horses running a good deal. This was repeated in the second trial, "Derigo" easily winning the race in the time required.

This afternoon there will be several races at the same hour, two o'clock.

The vessel was loading wheat for the United Kingdom and would have finished the next day.

THE NORTHWEST WAR.

Poundmaker Wants Terms to Surrender.

The Braves Renouncing their War Paint.

Return of a Number of White Prisoners.

Strength of the Indians Over 1,500.

Troops Relieve Prince Albert Amid Rejoicing.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 23.—A Battleford dispatch of May 21st says: At sunset to-night Father Cochen and twenty-five other persons, bearing white flags, arrived from Poundmaker's camp with a letter asking upon what terms surrender would be accepted. He wants a reply in two days. He also sent messengers with similar letters to Gen. Middleton. This action was caused by the arrival of four half-breeds who reported the capture of Riel. The news created consternation in the Indian camp. The braves are hiding their rifles and removing their war paint. A council was held, the result of which was a decision to send in the priest and the prisoners. It seems Poundmaker was on the way to join Riel and was met by a half-breed scout. The letter was written at Poundmaker's dictation by Jefferson, schoolmaster on the reserve.

The prisoners sent in with father Cochen include the twenty teamsters captured in Eagle hills, Fontaine, the captured scouts Bremner and Sayers, of Bresaylors settlement, and two women, It is made apparent that 21 woman and children from Bresaylors settlement are held as hostages.

The Indian camp possess over 1500 souls, 360 are mounted men and 700 in all capable of bearing arms. Bremner says their loss at Cut Knife was 50 killed and 17 wounded. Big Bear was not at the fight, his son participating. It is also claimed that only half the number of Indians were in the engagement with Col. Otter's force. This is improbable. Poundmaker now holds a strong position near Lizzard lake, 50 miles from here.

PRINCE ALBERT, May 19, via Humboldt, 21st.—Troops reached here this morning and were received by the volunteers and citizens amid great rejoicings.

ST. PAUL, May 22.—Riel will be taken to jail at Regina. Young is taking his prisoners up to Swift Current by steamer, and thence by rail to Regina.

Fan vs. Fan.

The application of the plaintiff for the appointment of a receiver in the celebrated Chinese partnership case was argued in chambers yesterday afternoon before his lordship the chief justice. Hon. Mr. Davie appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Helmcken for the defendant.

The application was granted, and Mr. Prevost, supreme court registrar, appointed receiver, and he immediately assumed charge of the books and deputed Mr. Vrooman his agent.

The defendant has been secreting goods lately, and eleven boxes of opium were spirited away. The receiver procured the services of the sheriff who, with the officers, found six of the boxes in a basement on Cormorant street. While these were being taken to Kwong Lee's store the other five, which were stored in the neighborhood of the Lion Brewery, were transferred to another place, and when the sheriff went for them he was disappointed. The total amount of opium in the eleven boxes was about $5,500, $3,000 of which has so far been recovered.

The costs in this suit promise to reach to a very large amount, it being stated that already about $20,000 have been sunk in the effort.

MANY people are not aware that it is the wrapper of tobacco which gives the color to the plug, and are, therefore, often deceived by a handsome outside appearance. The wrapper is a single film of leaf wrapped round the plug, and is never good smoking tobacco. It is costly only because of its fine color. In the "Myrtle Navy" brand the chief attention is paid to the "filler," that is, the inside of the plug. It is this which determines the smoking tobacco. A tobacco can be made to look as well as the "Myrtle Navy" without much trouble or expense, but at the same time be a very inferior article.

LARGE FRUIT.—Frank Campbell has on exhibition an immense strawberry from C. Pardoe's garden, Fort street. It weighs one and three quarter ounces, and measures 6 by 6½ inches in circumference. This kind is most luscious in flavor, and would seem to indicate that there is no necessity for Victoria paying duty on this pleasant fruit.

FOR NANAIMO.—The R. P. Rithet left yesterday noon with a party of excursionists, numbering about 200, bound for the celebration of the Queen's birthday at Nanaimo. They were accompanied by the Amateur band in plug hats, headed by the only colored drum-major in the province.

POINT ELLIS BRIDGE.—The Albion Iron Works have received the contract for the iron work for the Point Ellis bridge, in all about 75 tons. As the woodwork, also, will be done here, it is almost unnecessary to state that little or none of the money for its erection willl leave the country.

FIRE AT SEATTLE.—A $40 000 fire occurred at Seattle on Thursday night, at 10 o'clock, having commenced in a laundry at the corner of Spring and Seneca streets. The California Market, Lachneal's laundry, the French Spice Mills, Gilmore's block, several warehouses and a carpenter shop were burned.

ROLLER SKATING.—To-night the new roller skating rink, corner of Yates and Quadra streets, will be opened. This adds another amusement to the list and will probably attract large crowds. Roller skating has become all the rage in the east, and if not over indulged in, is a most healthy exercise. The managers of the rink have provided for Monday evening the appearance of Mr. F. R. Twickham, a champion skater from Chicago.

TORPEDO BOATS.—The torpedo boats for this station will shortly be here. The Constance on her way from San Francisco left coal at various points to furnish fuel to the torpedo boats. The latter are of a large and recent pattern, being about 150 feet in length.

LAKE HILL.—Mr. Ralph, C. E., has completed the subdividing and marking of the corner posts of this valuable estate, and the property will soon be placed upon the market at private sale on exceptionally favorable terms; a most advantageous view of the land, together with the adjoining estates, Swan Lake and Victoria can be had from Lake Hill heights which are easy of access; prices of each plot of about five acres will be given upon application after the 30th April. Subdivision maps can be seen at our office. District maps of the location can be had on application.

EASTERN STATES.

NEW YORK, May 22.—In regard to the death of ex-Secretary Frelinghuysen, who died at Newark, N. J., on the 20th, his family makes no secret of the fact that the first serious illness of Judge Frelinghuysen was due to aconite, that in some unaccountable manner was bottled with mineral water that he used, and Dr. Lincoln, of Washington, says there was enough left in the bottle to kill four men.

CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—Edward Hanlan was questioned to-day on his defeat by Beach, and replied: "I simply met a better man than I was at the time. I was beaten fairly and squarely. I shall return to Australia in eighteen months and try him again. Beach is the best man I ever met. I am authorized by his backer to say that he is ready to row any man in the world for from $5,000 to $25,000 and allow traveling expenses." Mr. Hanlan is in excellent health, and will remain here for two days and then proceed to Toronto by train for a summer's rowing.

The Bishop and the Prince.

Among the members of the Irish Roman Catholic episcopate who distinguished themselves by the inculcation of their flocks of the duty of receiving the Prince of Wales with the hospitality due to strangers and the loyalty due to the heir to the crown, was the bishop of Cork, Dr. Delaney. Addressing his clergy on the eve of the approach of the royal party, his lordship said that his royal highness intended to visit one of the Catholic institutions, the Home of Refuge, under the care of the nuns of the Good Shepherd. The bishop intimated to the clergy that it was his intention to be at the Convent of the Good Shepherd in order to receive his royal higness and his amiable consort. He wished the clergy, as many as were free and were inclined to go, to join in paying to their royal highnesses that tribute of respect and devotion which was due those of an exalted rank. The Prince of Wales came not among them as a politician. By his position he was raised far beyond the sphere of politics and party strife. He was to be the future ruler of them all, and they were bound to give him that honor and to yield to him that unquestioning obedience of which St. Paul spake: "Tribute to whom tribute is due; fear to whom fear; honor to whom honor." There was another reason also why they should receive the prince with warm welcome. His royal highness had evinced a peculiar interest in the question of housing the poor, a question which concerned them in Ireland very intimately, and common gratitude should lead them to give a warm welcome to him who had interested himself so much in looking after their wants. Dr. Delaney was one of those who presented an address to the Queen on her visit to Ireland in 1849, and more recently, at the banquet given to the Duke of Connaught in Cork, the health of his royal highness was eloquently proposed by his lordship.

Professor Vambery on Russian Designs.

LONDON, May 11.—A reporter has had a long interview with Professor Vambery, the well known eastern scholar and traveller with intimate acquaintance with the Russian border and Afghanistan. Questioned closely about his views on the situation between Russia and England the professor said:—"Peace is assured, I think, for the present. That Russia, sooner or later, will take Herat is absolutely certain, promises or no promises. On the two main points you know my opinion. The first is that Herat is the key to India, and that Penjdeh, both morally and strategically, is the key to Herat. From Penjdeh and thence only, the valley of the Murghab can be passed to Balar Murghab; thence the way is open to Herat. "On this question," said the professor, vehemently, "I am the only European whose information is autopsic."

Corrections in the Old Testament.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Messrs. Funk & Wagner have published, in conjunction with the revised Old Testament, a companion to it from the pen of Dr. Chambers, one of the American revisors, who is familiar with the work from the beginning. The progress of language has rendered many changes necessary of words and phrases obsolete, hence unintelligible. The following are some specimens, all from the Old Testament. There are many renderings declared to be incorrect by the lexicons and commentaries of critical character. For example, the word "hypocrite" is found eight times in the Book of Job, yet in not one of them does the original term have that meaning. So one of the oblations mentioned in the pentateuch and elsewhere, is called a "meat offering," which leads the reader to suppose it is an animal sacrifice, whereas the Hebrew means an unbloody oblation, and is correctly rendered "meal offering." The following list of incorrect words is placed first, with reference to one of the places where it occurs, and then the true meaning as generally accepted among scholars:

| INCORRECT. | MODERN READING. |
|---|---|
| Apothecary, (Ex. xxxx, 25) | Perfumer |
| Avenging, (Judges v, 2) | Leaders |
| Bittern, (Isaiah xiv, 23) | Porcupine |
| Barrow, (Exodus xi, 2) | Ash |
| Breaches (Judges v, 17) | Creeks or harbors |
| Candle, (Job xviii, 6) | Lamp |
| Caldron, (Jeremiah ii, 18) | Pot |
| College, (II Kings xxii, 14) | Second ward |
| Coast, (Jer. xxv, 32) | Uttermost part |
| Crooked, (Job xxvi, 13) | Fleet or fleeing |
| Dead thing, (Job xxvi, 5) | The Spader |
| Diet, (Jeremiah lii, 34) | Allowance |
| Dragons, (Psalms lxxi, 13) | Monsters |
| Dragons, (Job xxx, 29) | Jackals |
| Dregs, Isaiah li, 17) | Bowl |
| Flagons of wine, (Hosea iii, 1) | Pressed grapes |
| Fires, (Isaiah xxiv, 15) | the East |
| Flood, (Joshua xxiv, 14) | the River |
| Foxes, (Judges xv, 4) | Jackals |
| Groves, (Exodus xxiv, 13) | Pillars |
| Galleries, Cant. vii, 5) | Curls of hair |
| Grow up, (Mal. iv, 2) | Leap |
| Hats, (Daniel xii, 2) | Mantles |

The following selection of passages which have been changed in the revision, is intended as a specimen of the work done, and of the priciples upon which it has been carried out: Genesis—In the first chapter the putting of each day's work in a separate paragraph aids the common reader. In iv., 23, the song of Lamech is made more intelligible by making the second couplet read: "Run, for I have slain a man for wounding me, and a young man for bruising me." In xiii, 3, "Abraham went up out of Egypt in the south." The printing of the last word with a capital letter shows it refers to a definite region, the Negeb, and thus avoids the incongruity af the old version in leading one to think that the patriarch reached Palestine by going south from Egypt. In verse 18, the plain of Mamre which is in Hebron, is changed to the "Oaks of Mamre, which are in Hebron," because this is the meaning of the Hebrew, and there is no plain in Hebron or its vicinity. So xiv., 13, and xvii., 1, and in xviii., 19, for "I know him, that he will command his children and his household after him," is changed to "for I have known to the end that he may command," etc. In xxiv., 2, "Abraham said to his eldest servant of his house," is made to read, "Abraham said to his servant, the elder of his house," which is what the Hebrew means. In xxiii., 19, "and Jacob came to Shalem, a city of Shechem." The revision reads, "Came in peace to the city of Shechem," because no such city as Shalem is known. In the prophesy of Jacob, Genesis xxix, are several manifest improvements. Reuben is charged with being not "unstable," but as the original word means "boiling over," that is impulsive or excitable, which exactly describes his character as shown by his conduct on various occasions. In the fifth verse "instruments of cruelty are in their habitations;' on the margin of the old version "weapons of violence are their swords" is inserted in the text, as being more literal and more expressive. In the ninth verse, instead of saying that Judah "couched as an old lion," the revision returns to Tindale's more accurate rendering "as a lioness." Exodus ii, 22: "A stranger in a strange land" is rendered "a sojourner in a strange land." In the song of triumph, after passing the Red Sea (xv.), the vividness and poetical language of the poetical lyre are shown in the revision by the change of the past tense and the present in vv. 5-7, and of the future into the past in vv. 14-16, a change required by the original. In the obscure passage (Exodus xxvi, 16) the text retains the rendering of the old version, while the margin gives the more literal sense of the Hebrew: "Because there is a hand," i. e., the hand of Amalek "against the throne of the Lord," therefore the Lord will have war with Amalek from generation to generation. In the second commandment (xxxv.) we have a slight change—"visiting the iniquity of the father upon the children upon the third and fourth generation of them that hate me." The exact sense of the original. Sixth commandment (v. 13) is after the pattern of the prayer book, and the old version in Matt. xix., 18, given as "thou shalt do no murder," and the same as Deut. v. 17. The advantage of this rendering is that it needs no limitation or explanation. To kill is often lawful and sometimes a duty, but to do murder is wrong always and everywhere. The tabernacle of the congregation is changed to tent of meeting. In the word "Jehovah," the original word is followed, the revisors not thinking it advisable to insert it uniformly in place of "Lord" or "God," which, when printed in small capitals, represent the words substituted by Jewish custom for the ineffable name of technical terms from the Hebrew. One in three seems to have been generally introduced. In Judges the word grave (Judges, vi 28) has been replaced by Ashera, with its plurals "Asherim" and "Asheroth." In the historical work of Judges, chap. v., the song of Deborah is amended according to the demands of modern scholarship, verses 10 and 11 are rendered, "Tell of it, ye that ride on white asses, ye that sit on rich carpets, and ye that walk by the way, far from the noise of archers in places of drawing water, there shall they rehearse the righteous acts of the Lord." II. Samuel i, 18, old version, reads, "Bade them teach the children of Israel the use of the bow." The revision puts it "song of the bow." In ii, 23, "Abner smote him under the fifth rib," is changed in agreement with modern lexicons to "in the belly." In verse 10 we read, "David went on, and grew great;" the revision resolves this Hebrew idiom, "David waxed greater and greater." In vi, 19, instead of "a flagon of wine," the revision properly reads, "a cake of raisins."

French Gallantry.

Whatever the Frenchman's notion may be of the galante homme, his ambition is always to be considered un homme galant. Scarcely any misfortune or inferiority of looks can rob him of the impression that he possesses certain qualities pleasing to the gentle sex. If his back be curved he will find in it the line of beauty, if his nose be twisted, he will find it a piquant departure from the ordinary monotonous rule of facial feature. * * When the Gaul performs a gallant act, he extracts all the honey there is to be gotten out of it. If he gives up his seat to a woman, he takes off his hat, and point to the vacant place as if he were surrendering an empire and inviting a queen to enthrone herself. If he hoist her umbrella, it is as if he were spreading out the canopy of heaven over her head. If he picks up a fallen glove, he offers it to the owner as if he was placing his sword and honor at her disposal for the rest of his life. If he quits her at the foot of a stairway, he looks after her as a chamberlain of the court might do when Her Majesty mounts the throne. All this makes him happy. The consciousness of having conducted himself as a chevalier without reproach the probability of having produced an impression on the heart of her whom he has thus encountered, and the recollection of her enticing manner, bring ripples of pleasure across his mind whenever the scene recurs to him.

REPORTED COLLAPSE OF PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

The Emperor William Very Ill.

Sir Peter Lumsden's Advice.

The Mystery About Melglund's Recall.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 20.—Rumors are current here to the effect that the Anglo-Russian negoations have collapsed. It is believed, however, that the rumors originated with the war party.

The Svet predicts an outbreak in Macedonia and Bulgaria against the Turks, which will set the whole Slavonic world in flames.

LONDON, May 20.—In the House of Commons, Sir Arthur Dwitt, Financial Secretary of the War Office, announced that the Brigade Guards, now on their way home from Suakim, had been ordered to stop at Alexandria in case circumstances arising render it desirable to further detain them in Egypt. They had not, however, been ordered to disembark at Alexandria.

BERLIN, May 20.—Prince Bismarck has recently given several long audience to Count Paul Schouvoloff, the new Russian Ambassador to Germany.

The proposal of the Prussian Government concerning the Brunswick succession will be discussed by the Bundesrath to-morrow.

The National Zeitung says that the proposal is that the Bundesrath should express conviction that administration of the Government of Brunswick by the Duke of Cumberland will be incompatible with international peace and the security of the empire.

DUBLIN, May 20.—The leading Nationalists will contest Tyrone in the coming Parliamentary election, and will attempt to carry all seats.

PARIS, May 20.—Victor Hugo's right lung is congested, morphia is being injected to alleviate his sufferings. His condition is hopeless.

SHEERNESS, May 20.—The British turret ship Ajax has been ordered to be put in readiness for service at sea by next Saturday.

BERLIN, May 20.—It is announced to-day that the Emperor is again indisposed, and that owing to his illness King Leopold of Belgium has posponed the visit he intended making on the 21st to thank the Emperor and Prince Bismarck for their assistance in promoting the foundation of the Congo State.

LONDON, May 20.—The gunboat Forester, with a number of police and 70 marines on board, has arrived at Portre, island of Skye, to arrest the crofters on the Kilmir estate.

LONDON, May 20.—It is reported that the Irish land purchase bill provides that the government shall advance three fourths of the purchase money, landlords retaining a lien for the other forth, and that before he is paid off, a large portion of the government claim must be satisfied.

LONDON, May 20.—Advices from Tirpul say Sir Peter Lumsden's advice to the Government was that, in view of recent events, it was best to break up the commission, leaving the Government itself to settle the frontier question with Russia.

CANADA.

OTTAWA, May 20.—A general strike on the eastern division of the Canadian Pacific railroad has been fixed for Monday next. Unpaid wages are the cause of the trouble.

There is a good deal of speculation as to the cause of Lord Melglund's return from the northwest at this particular moment. It is thought he has been instructed to place Col. Otter's conduct in proceeding against Poundmaker without definite orders before the minister of militia. Col. Otter's instructions were to relieve Battleford, but General Middleton entertained no idea of his engaging the Big Cree chief unless the Indians made an attack. It is also thought he is here to explain the exact situation of affairs in the Northwest, and get further advice for General Middleton's guidance in his future actions. His original intention being merely to suppress the half-breed rebellion, and to relieve beleagured places, and no Indian massacres have been reported. He is also here to ascertain what plan General Middleton shall pursue in punishing redskin depredations. Lord Melglund will sail for England with Lady Melglund on the 30th inst.

ATLANTIC DISASTERS.

A Steamship in Great Peril.

A Ship Collides with an Iceberg.

HALIFAX, May 20.—The steamer Dracona, already reported arrived disabled, presented a curious appearance as she docked. Her stem from sixteen feet draught mark for ten feet or more up is flattened back about three feet on the port and five feet on the starboard, while above this the stem is split perpendicularly as though struck by an immense battering ram. Captain Sangster reports as follows: "We left Charente May 8th, and passed out of the river May 9th. We had fine weather to the banks, and passed the first iceberg on Saturday morning, 16th inst., at seven o'clock. The wind was then southerly and the weather misty. About 2 p. m. the wind shifted to the north and the weather cleared up. The night was dark and cloudy. There was no fog and the steamer was going at full speed. At 2 p. m. a second iceberg was passed, the wind being southwest. At 11 p. m. saw what appeared to be a fog bank on our starboard bow; being apprehensive of danger, orders were given to put the helm hard a starboard, the engines at the same time being stopped. Then we could see that the supposed fog bank was ice. As it was impossible to avoid the ice by use of the helm, the engines were backed full speed, but they had not been movins in this direction over a minute, and the crew had scarcely time to leave the forecastle, before the ship came in violent collision with an iceberg making a terrible crash. The iceberg had come in full view when the engines were running full speed astern. The crew thought the steamer would sink immediately and preparations were hurriedly made to abandon her. While the glittering tower of ice was creakingly disengaged and slowly drifted off, the Captain made an examination of the bow, and discovered the damage was all before the collision bulkhead. It was found the ship was making no water. Being a steel ship the plates had not broken, but were simply doubled in, forming a sort of breakwater for the bulkhead. No further accident occurred, but thick weather was experienced until the steamer's arrival in port. After discharging her Halifax freight the Dracona will proceed to Montreal without waiting for repairs."

QUEBEC, May 20.—The crew of the Norwegian ship Moen, lost in collision with an iceberg, arrived to-day. They report the ship having become firmly jammed in the iceberg, boats were got out. Twelve men got into the first one, which was speedily carried out of the vessel's reach. As six more of the crew remained, another boat was got out, but it was at once swamped and filled. Matters had begun to look serious for those on the vessel, when the first boat managed to get within hailing distance and a line was thrown to her, and she was hauled alongside. The remainder of the crew succeeded in boarding her, except one man, Johan Rohel, a native of Denmark, who was lost. The captain was the last to leave the vessel, and had a very narrow escape, being precipitated into the water and carried down a considerable distance, losing consciousness. The crew, however, notwithstanding the darkness, managed finally to rescue him. They had barely cleared when the huge iceberg toppled over on the doomed vessel, cutting her in two.
